Excerpt: .Airplane Saves Grain Firm Unable to arrange for the routing of several hundred carloads of grain as a result of the destruction of telegraph and telephone lines by the recent storm which swept the Middle West, a Grand Island, Nebr., firm of grain merchants saved itself several thousands of dollars as a result of the efficiency of the airplane. The Highland Grain Company of Grand Island, Nebr., whose operations extend into Wyoming, Montana and Idaho, had many contracts to fill before the emergency freight rate, made on account of conditions brought on by the severe draught last season, was discontinued by the railroads on April 1. On March 29, a severe wind and sleet storm completely cut off all telegraph and telephone communications in Nebraska, leaving the company without means of notifying its trade as to billing. J. H. Highland, manager and owner of the Highland Grain Company, unable to use the mails because of the necessity of prompt action chartered a Curtiss Oriole airplane from the Grand Island Aero Company, distributors of Curtiss airplanes in Nebraska, and Pilot Earle Barnes, accompanied by V. M. Woodhead, one of the officials of the grain company, started out on a 500-mile trip. They visited all points in Nebraska from which they had grain to be moved, gave instructions as to shipping and as a result were able to fulfill every contract prior to the expiration of the drought rate....
