Slightly pitch to floor drain. Veranda Floors. Concrete floors for verandas, porches, and even balconies are much to be desired. While they cost a little more than wood, they are imperishable. Such floors may be built on the ground the same as walks, or on rough wooden supports. One part of Portland cement, three parts of sharp sand, and three to five parts of gravel, mixed with sufficient water to become plastic, and tamped in position to a thickness of 3 inches, is the rule. The wearing coat is a half-inch thick, and made of 1 part Portland cement and 2 parts sand. The top coat should be smoothed with a plasterer s trowel, and allowed to stand for six to eight days, being kept damp. saving of labor in applying the richer facing, and only two-fifths the weight to handle. Steps for Residences. The growing demand for concrete steps for residence entrances has led to the construction of the type of step shown in Fig. 18. These steps or treads are made at the hollow block plant and kept in stock. The mould, a cross-section of which is shown, is inexpensive and allows the use of rich mix for facing, and wire cloth or expanded...
